

BELLUM IN CAELO

SATB DIV., DOUBLE CHOIR

ADAPTATION OF “FACTUM EST SILENTIUM”
ANDREW STEFFEN

About the Work:

One of the more striking images in the Catholic church is of St. Michael slaying the Dragon. Depicted in a number of vivid ways, the idea of Michael conquering Satan and causing silence in heaven elicited a cinematic story in my head of this battle – clanging swords, marching armies, and exchanging intimidating words.

Using the text of “Factum Est Silentium” as a base, I imposed additional lyrics that continued this narrative of a battle between Michael and the Dragon; heaven and hell; good and evil. What’s created as a result are these two characters, represented by the two choirs. Choir I often plays the role of Michael, while Choir II the Dragon, though at times their character’s lines or ideas can be exchanged. The work is divided into three sections: the first being the fight between Michael and the Dragon; the second section being almost like they’ve tired from battle and are exchanging dramatic phrases; the final section is the celebration of victory for Michael

Text:

Bellum in Caelo

*Factum est Silentium in Caelo dum committerit bellum draco.
Dum Michael pugnavit draco*

“*Parate perderes, Satanas”
“Vincere non potes, Michael”*

“*Ego sum ignis et Tenebrae.
Timete me.”*

“*Ego sum custodia caelorum.
Arcum Deo.”*

“Nunquam”

*Salus, honor, et virtus omnipotenti Deo
Alleluia*

Translation:

War in Heaven

There was silence
In heaven while war waged with the Dragon.
And Michael fought the Dragon.

“Prepare to perish, Satan”
“You can’t win, Michael”

“I am fire and darkness.
Fear me.”

“I am the guardian of heaven.
Bow to God.”

“Never”

Salvation, honor, and strength to Almighty God.
Alleluia

A few considerations should be in mind while preparing the work. The balance of the two choirs should be equal – the characters play equal roles in telling this story. Secondly, the sonority and tone of the ensemble should be dramatic and crystalline. Vibrato is no enemy, but be mindful of how clear the dissonant moments are and should be (more “Anglican” in that regard). Lastly, the stylistic changes between the three sections should be defined: marcato, legato, and cantabile/triumphant
